Acknowledgment

I am grateful that a part of my work towards Japan Literacy in Australia, a PhD dissertation completed in 2001, will be published in this form. In both my PhD work and the preparation of this book, I have been very fortunate to have had the support of many wonderful people. I express my deep gratitude to Professor Hidehiro Sonoda of International Research Center for Japanese Studies (Nichibunken) in Kyoto, Japan, for his invaluable academic advice and guidance. My heartfelt appreciation is extended also to Professor Sadami Suzuki of Nichibunken, for providing me with the opportunity to present the dissertation to The Graduate University For Advanced Studies. To Professor James C. Baxter of Nichibunken, I offer my sincere thanks for his valuable advice and encouragement at various stages of my work.

My love and respect go to my uncle, Professor Kazuro Hanihara, Emeritus Professor of Tokyo University and of Nichibunken, for his lifelong guidance and encouragement. Since my earliest years he has imprinted on my mind the importance of personal integrity in scholarly pursuit.

For their consistent support, I would like to thank, most sincerely, each member of the staff of both the Japanese Studies Department and the Japanese Studies Centre at Macquarie University in Sydney, Australia. While I took leave to complete my PhD dissertation, they shouldered my responsibilities for six long months, and again repeated that favour this current year, when I had to focus my efforts on the preparation of this book.
